Creator of all my moods —

It's only a few moments before Father Time lays a possessing hand on my precious spare time and converts it into the past — but I just feel like writing — I was in the mood — shall we say? And since you are the Creator of my moods it is only logical that I should write you.

Now, it's my turn to be in doubt and a little angry. Because — you see — it's been almost a week and a half since I heard from you. Maybe that's why I'm so crazy about you — Sometimes I get so angry at you I don't know what to do with myself — then the next minute I love you so much I can't see your faults. You keep me in doubt — you're a man of mystery — I can't figure you out. Those hundred and one little things about you that keep me in doubt — make me sad — make me happy — make me disgusted and sometimes make me wish I were never born all add up to one thing - I love you - three little words that have an ocean's depth and a world of hidden meaning. Sometimes I wonder if you'll always be in my dreams or if sometime something will strip off the capsule of imagination and bring it into the realms of tangibility. But that's something for the wonder-what column or better still - just put it in a book of fairy tales and that's probably as far as it'll ever get. I'll be something when I'm old - gray and decrepid to tell my nieces and nephews while they're sitting on my knee.

In all seriousness I've got a huge chip on my shoulder - and once more I sink into the feeling of human depression and I'm sure you have felt that way at some time or another because of different reasons.
But this work is so darned hard and it doesn't take much to tear down your morale. Ah yes - we nurses have morale, too. Being away from home isn't easy for anyone - Oh well - skip it -

We're all getting a little more used to the barn we live in and despite the fact that we don't get to see much of one another we manage to survive.

There isn't much to say as I don't have any of your letters to answer but I just felt like writing.

In a news reel the other evening - I watched Army defeat Navy in a football game. I don't remember whether or not we had any bets on that game - but anyway - I knew Army would win - that was very obvious -

That's all for tonight - but I just want to add the words of a song - my sentiments: -

"You'll never know how many dreams we dreamed about you or just how empty they all seem without you so - Kiss me once then kiss me twice - then kiss me once again - It's been a long - long time" -

My sentiments exactly and a final sentiment to say Good-night with - cause I just want the right to give all my love with all my heart - all of my life -

God bless you -

Martha
