

Mr. Oliver T. Horstetter Jr.
415 Haven

St. Louis, (16)
Mo

3.24.46
Sunday Eve 8⁰⁰ p.m.

Dearest one -

This letter will probably be short tonight since my sister just blew in - and that's exactly what happened.

So, we've been sitting here reminiscing - shootin' the breeze - and what not. She's pretty thin and has a beautiful tan - I can't get much out of her about her trip to Chicago, but I don't think things went so hot - but I'll let you know what happens.

I didn't do much today - Church this morning and then I piled up on the living room floor and listened to 2 hours of mystery stories on the radio. It was a lazy day - but I enjoyed it immensely - I'd like to romp on the floor with you again - There are so many people around here I can't say the things I want to - Maybe it's a good thing I wrote you a long letter last night.

Mary Ann just washed her hair and she's sitting here putting it up now -

and has started shooting the breeze again
so I may as well give up.

They just told me that I have to go downtown tomorrow - I'd really just as soon stay here - I came here to see my family and ain't not interested in any thing else.

I must close now saying
I'll be loving you, always
With a heart that's true -

Always Stinky Poo.

I love you so very much -

Say hello to your family for me -
I miss you like the very devil.